

"ACHIEVING EXCELLENCE IN COMMUNITIES AND BUSINESSES"

The following diagram depicts the various programs that take dead-aim at building local capacity to address critical issues, to improve quality of life, to invigorate local economies, to develop community champions and to create sustainable communities positioned for success rather than survival. You may access information about each one of these programs by clicking on the various boxes and links below.

Who usually attends workshops? Citizens interested in making their community better tomorrow than it is today should claim a seat at one or more of these workshops. Participants most often represent chambers of commerce, economic development, city and county government, planners, board members and those that work with boards, educators, grant writers, consultants, business owners, and landowners.

Why do people attend our workshops? Workshops are applied, hands-on, interactive sessions presented by the most knowledgeable practitioners we can find. They focus on your challenges and opportunities and help you solve your problems and answer your questions. All our workshops provide you new tools, skills and knowledge that can be implemented as soon as you get back to work.

Visit our website, TCRE.org for information on workshops, business and community assessment products, and other resources.